

The Myth of Chinese Capitalism

JEFF BROWN—One of the great fabrications of Western mainstream media, among academics and on Wall Street is that China, starting in 1978 with Deng Xiaoping's economic reforms, became a capitalist country. The favorite Western shibboleth bandied about is that, China's authoritarian regime (it's almost never called a government) runs a system of state capitalism.